

CURRENT STATUS OF THE CRYPTOLOGIC COMMAND DISPLAY (CT MUSEUM)

NAS PENSACOLA, FLORIDA

CORRY STATION

MANNING/STAFFING

THERE ARE 2 VOLUNTERS AT THE MUSEUM:

Paul Fredrick who comes in 1 day a week for 4 hours and scans historical documents and stores them on a portable storage device and to a drop box account that was established by the museum for that purpose.

Mike Sonier who does everything else that has to do with the Museum.

Steve Connors, who operates the NCVA Ship's Store, helps as well when and where he can. He is a valued asset.

OPERATIONS/TASKS/INITIATIVES

The display continues to be open for visitors, but on a reduced schedule.

Volunteers who have a DOD ID Card are needed to help with the following projects/initiatives:

Scanning historical documents

Upkeep and maintenance of Display Cases and artifacts. Some tasks would require Electrical and Carpenter skills.

Welcome visitors and share your knowledge of the Naval Security Group and the CT Rating. Training will be provided on the artifacts at the display. Everyone has a story to share. We learn something from every visitor, and they learn something from us.

Expand the display with more artifacts.

If you live in the Pensacola area or Wintering over or on vacation and could help us out whenever you can it would be greatly appreciated. You can reach me at (850)572-2861 (voice or text) or Email me at mikesonier65@gmail.com for further information.
